

Dear Hiring Manager,

It is with great motivation and enthusiasm to be seeking the prospect of working in the reliability and safety department. Being an engineering graduate in Montreal the opportunity of working in engineering is something that I truly want to pursue because I feel that I would not only become a value-added team member but also continue to learn, grow and develop my professional career at a company such as yours. I am truly eager to explore this workforce and open new doors & possibilities for future employment based on the recognition of the positive contributions and impressions I intend to make in my assigned role

So far, my pedagogical experience includes safety and system reliability, Human factors and product design and development. I learned on current safety standard and reliability evaluation of a system. This role has exposed to me to many challenges commonly faced in the safety department such as, daily operation control, collect and analyses safety sheets and make sure they meet with the current regulation. This role has enabled me to work in a fast pace environment, in a team setting or autonomously, while confidently making business decisions which would have a positive impact on operations and support company initiatives & targets. I believe that the skills and knowledge I have acquired in this work experience could be used and further developed moving forward in my future endeavors.

I welcome the prospect of this meaningful experience and look forward to positive response. Thank you, in advance, for your kind consideration.

Best regards,
Mohamad Fneiche
